Plenty of Brown-tail Moth Nests. Sheriff Bicknell tells us that he noticed while driving through this section that there are numerous brown-tail moth nests which must be picked. In nearly every section through which he has been they are numerous, especially through Oxford, Paris, sections of Hebron, and on the line of the Grand Trunk as far as Bethel and even up Bear river way. According to law the selectmen must notify the owners of property and see that the nests are gathered and destroyed. We understand that the town must care for the trees. If the owners neglect to gather the moth nests the towns have authority to gather them and charge such expense to the owners as the coming year. See to it and pick the nests.

Another Week of Fun. "An excellent moving picture program and skating attracted to Central Park, Saturday evening, one of the largest crowds assembled in the Casino. The picture bill consisted of four numbers, the first, "Elephant Hunting," was a photographic scene of a party in an African jungle. The second, "A Very Active Gentleman," in this subject, a practical joke in the form of a matrimonial placard on the victim's back drew a multitude of females, and the third, followed, gave the spectators huge laughs and comedy, nicely served on large platters. The fourth was a strong psychological drama entitled "The Witch" and one of the best subjects seen in this cozy picture house. A number of scenes are endowed with magnetic and occult power in so great degree that an inanimate doll receives the soul life of a young lady captive. The prisoner's lover experiences many spiritual manifestations while endeavoring to break from the mystic spell of the sorceress. The third, "On a Monkey Honey-moon," and Lonaetha Turner York rendered "Sweet Star of Love." Both songs were fully illustrated.

SOUTH PARIS.

Board of Trade Meeting. The Board of Trade held a meeting Wednesday evening at the assessors' office with a good attendance. It was voted by the board to give the Western Maine Poultry Association $50 from the funds in the treasury. The Poultry Association had been to a great deal of expense in holding its show this year, and although the receipts were very good, it was obliged to run in debt in part for the coops which had made for the show. It was thought advisable to assist the organization and this amount was unanimously voted.

The matter regarding the publishing of "South Paris" in the next edition of the telephone directory gotten out by the Maine Telephone Company, instead of having the name coming under that of Norway exchange as in the past, as it frequently makes confusion for those elsewhere who do not know the situation of the telephone here, was taken up, and a committee consisting of A. C. Wheeler, N. D. Bolster and W. L. Gray was appointed to take the matter before the General Manager Abbott.

W. L. Gray brought up the matter showing the necessity for the extension of the sewer and after discussion a committee was appointed to bring the situation before the people and to secure action upon it. On this committee are N. D. Bolster, Dr. J. G. Littlefield, Dr. N. M. Stewart, J. S. Wright and A. C. Wheeler.

Saturday evening his theme was "Strong Consolation," with comments on the City of Refuge. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Lucella Smiley, "Sometime, somewhere." Monday evening, "The Successful Courtship," was the subject of his sermon, being a very interesting discourse and one of the best which he has delivered thus far. Helen Barnes sweetly sang a solo, "His Eye is on the Sparrow."

These meetings will be continued until the 25th. The meeting next Sunday afternoon for men only, will be at 3 o'clock with the subject, "The Successful Man."

This meeting will be held at Grange hall, South Paris, commencing at 10 o'clock. Program will consist of election of officers, general discussion and an address by Prof. E. F. Hittobins. Paris Grange will furnish dinners. Every one invited. Important meeting! Apple growers should be sure to come.

The officers of the Oxford County Agricultural Society held an all-day meeting, Tuesday, in the office of the town assessors of South Paris. All of the officers, with the exception of Trustee J. W. Libby of Hartford, were present. The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, by President Wheeler. The report of Secretary-Treasurer Frothingham, showing the society—the oldest of its kind in the State—to be in good financial condition, was listened to first. The receipts for the year were $7627.48, and the surplus in the treasury is $1440.45, with all bills paid. Premiums amounting to $4,133.11 as the largest item on the report, were $1508.57 were expended for repairs and improvements on the property of the association. The report was audited by A. T. Andrews and Thomas P. Richardson. In the vegetable department, a new premium offered is that for the best array of field crops and vegetables exhibited by a boy under 18 years of age. In the apple department, the largest and best display of apples raised and exhibited by one person, will hereafter receive a premium. Premiums in other departments were in some cases increased. In the hog department, the Hampshire breed will now be an official exhibit. One farmer exhibited these at the last Fair and it is hoped there will be others the coming fall. Repairs and improvements for the next year were laid on the table until the May meeting. The division superintendents who will choose their own committees, are as follows: Grounds, W. J. Wheeler; Stock, E. W. Penley; J. W. Libby; L. E. McIntire; Horses, A. T. Andrews, T. P. Richardson; Hall, C. F. Millet.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in over-coming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder, and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The meeting was called at 11 o'clock by Worthy Master S. O. Hancock, who appointed Brother and Sister Walter Butler and Brother Cole as tellers to count and announce votes. Officers were elected as follows: M. C. Hancock, O. C. O. Martin; L. Mrs. Mary Thorpe; S. H. A. Gerry; A. S. Walter Butler; Chap. G. B. Hall; Treas. Geo. Hanscom; Sec. Mae Barton; G. K. Chas. Thorpe; P. Mrs. Cushman; C. Mrs. Kemp; E. Mrs. Clark.

After dinner came the installation of officers. Brother E. H. Libby, secretary of Maine State grange, was appointed installing officer, and for his aids he appointed Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thorpe and Mrs. Excelsior grange. The work was done in a pleasing manner.

The Weight of Grain.

Weight per measured bushel is not always a correct indication of the quality of grain. There are several conditions that have an influence in determining the relative proportion. Grain with a small berry will outweigh that with a larger berry, and the two, evenly mixed, will outweigh either alone. This is especially the case with peas, and a wrinkled surface will also cause a decrease in weight per bushel. In the case of barley and oats, the presence of beards and awns, respectively, will cause a lighter weight.

Other things being equal, oats of standard weight with awns may be superior in quality to those weighing forty pounds and upward, which usually have few, if any awns. This is because the awned oats fill the measure, while the smooth plump oats set off closely together, with the ends helping to fill the intervening space.

There is evidence to show that the individual grains with awns are of better quality than those the same size and shape without awns, while personal observation, as well as tabulated reports, tend to prove that, as a rule, the heavy weighing oats are of poorer quality.

Remove the hull from a few of the best grains and note the relative proportion of meat and hull. This relative proportion is the real test; don't be fooled by the weight per measured bushel.

Foundation Effects.

All of the under materials represent the real value of a garment. This is the keynote of the season's dinner gowns.

It is a decided reversal and far removed from the "sham" lining of peacock, which was the backbone of many a rich creation but a few years ago.

The lining has grown in grace until it has reached a point of magnificence that the more practical among women would hesitate to acknowledge were it still regarded as something to be concealed.

The so-called lining of the rich creation is in reality, the garment. The "upper" and lower materials are separate only inasmuch as they have been made in different sections; they hang together in the finished garment and are to be regarded as an iridescent whole whose inner radiance shines through transparent veils—a cloud with a silver lining.

The suggestion is not extravagant, in consideration of the excessive use of metal gauze. Cloth of gold and mesh of silver are the materials that produce the shimmering effect.

The slip lining of a dinner gown is a magnificent brocade or a richly embroidered satin with some "peachblow" surface; it is, again, hand-painted or beaded, but it is always a complete and handsome garment in itself, and only waiting for some added elegance of drape; and as if this were not enough, the drape itself is frequently doubled to produce a triple illusion.

The manufacture of these magnificent gowns has an interest to the maker of the less elaborate evening dress. They hold the secret of simple constructions, says Philadelphia Evening Times.

The yokel, careless condition helps to relieve some of the complications, and the building of it into an entire slip lining is an added relief.

Real practical help for the maker of the evening gown lies in the presence of good, sound material beneath. Draping becomes no "gashing of teeth" when there are no horrors of cotton percale and lining lawn to hide.

Given an already elegant foundation dress, there will be less demand for a profusion of drape and the whole surmounting of ornamentation and glitter may be brought within a reasonable limit of price.

News of the World.

The Boston Journal's News Service Unexcelled.

Few readers of the Boston Journal realize how many great news-gathering associations are called upon to supply the news for the daily edition. The Journal has gradually enlarged its facilities for collecting the news until its corps of correspondents cover the world.

Everyone is eager for news from Washington, especially when Congress is in session, and the Journal has planned its Washington Bureau so as to have exclusive news from its own correspondents. The Washington news and "Capitol Club" will be a daily feature of the Journal.

The Journal has also contracted for the entire news service of the famous New York Sun, purchasing the rights to use all of the Sun's news of this country and its foreign cable news as well. With this service will be included the Sun's able articles on the financial and mining situations, and literary articles which will prove of deep interest.

Besides these two notable features the Journal has the full service of The Associated Press and its widely-scattered corps of correspondents, also the great advantage of the other Munsey Newspapers, situated in Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, each handling news from its own vicinity, and contributing to its sister newspapers.

Adding to all these an able local staff, greatly enlarged, competent to handle political, athletic, social and financial affairs in its own vicinity, has made the Journal a paper second to none, the great home paper of New England.

Does Not Like Cold Weather in Florida.

The following extract from a private letter "from the sunny South" speaks disquieting news.

"I think my paper needs a little money to carry it ahead, so here it is for another few months. I was raised in Oxford county and of course it comes like a letter from home to me. We are having some very cold weather. Everything went down when it reached 20; the vegetables and oranges, and in low places they lost their orange trees and lemon trees.

"I pity the Northern people who often-times have sold everything at home and come here on the strength of a real estate agent's say so. We sold out just before the freeze and I can assure you that if we live to get back to frozen Maine we will stay there. The ground or sand is frozen solid here."

"The trees you see at the edge of the picture on the head of the letter paper on which I wrote was a banana grove containing eighty-three acres. All there is to-day is just a mass of blackness and rotten fruit. This is not written to publish, Mr. Editor, but I am going to write some time what I know about Florida. Let me say now that it is no place for a white man if he is poor. They have no use for him."

Easy Way to Hemstitch.

Turn in the raw edge of the material to be hemstitched and allow for hem, just what you would do were you going to do the hemstitching by hand. Then draw threads until you have the desired depth you wish. Now, instead of basting the hem at the outer edge of place where threads are drawn, baste it just along the first of the threads, the edge—that is, the edge nearest the center of handkerchief or whatever the article may be.

You are now ready to stitch the hem with the machine. When this has been done run the hem through the thumb and index finger, pushing the hem into place, which is the outer edge of drawn threads, where you would have hemstitched it by hand. If this is done carefully the wrong side can scarcely be told from the right, and only close inspection will show the work to be done by machine.

Ladders and Lanterns.

Two tools that are almost indispensable around a farm, are a good ladder and a good lantern. Not many persons will find use for either a ladder or a lantern every day in the year, but they are pretty sure to be needed at some time.

A good ladder is a ladder that has saved from fire if a ladder was at hand when the fire was first discovered.

Besides being needed at those times when it is necessary to do the chores after dark, a lantern is a most useful when sick animals must be looked after during the night. But own a good lantern. A good lantern costs less than a poor one, if the latter should be responsible for a costly fire.

Healthy, Happy Childhood

Look to the welfare of the children! See that little common ailments like constipation or biliousness don't make them peevish, irritable and sickly. Happiness is your children's birthright—don't rob them of it by neglect.

TRUE'S ELIXIR is childhood's friend. It makes the stomach and digestion healthful and active. It helps the circulation of good, red blood and expels that insidious foe of childhood—WORMS.

TRUE'S ELIXIR will benefit you also. Nothing like it to cure an aching head or steady tired nerves. It's been a standard remedy for three generations—make it your own family remedy as thousands of others have done. Your druggist has it—ask him.

Good for Many Things.

One of our "neighbor editors" says editorially:—

"The stationery printed at this office is giving the best satisfaction. Last week we printed one thousand statements for a man, and by their aid he collected a small fortune. Two months ago we printed some dandy paper and envelopes for a young man when writing to his sweetheart, and now he is married."

"A young lady got some wedding note printed here, and now she is married. Another young man forced a name on a check printed at this office, and is now in the penitentiary. Another young man stole some of our paper to make cigarettes with—he is dead. A young lady bought some of our paper to curl her hair on, and now she has a head."

By using our stationery a person can collect old accounts, tell fortunes, make rain, change the color of your hair, get mad at your neighbor, have your tooth extracted without pain, get thick with your next door neighbor's wife, find out the name of the future husband or wife, the latest steps in dancing, how to obtain a divorce, be successful in business, get a chair in your secret order, triumph over enemies and get elected to office. Try it, you have no idea of the power of the press.

Purity in Foods.

Methods of Preparing Various Products Being Discussed More Thoroughly Than Ever.

Ever since the passage of the pure food law a couple of years ago the discussion of food factory methods have continued to occupy a large share of public attention. While the original law has remedied a great many abuses, the methods used in various canning plants. An effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to have several of the more questionable methods made the subject of a new statute.

Among the processes to which exception is taken is the practice in which many canneries of peeling peaches by immersing them in lye or caustic soda instead of by knife. By using the caustic soda method canners save a cent or two per can. The method consists of putting the peaches in a tank containing a boiling solution of caustic soda and allowing the fruit to stew in this compound until the skins are eaten loose, which are then washed away. In the process of washing it is presumed that all of the caustic soda is also washed away but no effort is made to find out if this is accomplished. In consequence, if any of the lye remains on the fruit the consumer gets it. Just what effect this lye has on the human system has not yet been discovered but most folks probably would prefer not to be the ones experimented on.

Another feature in this matter is the fact that only unripe peaches can be used in the lye process with the result that the canners using this method prefer and must have green fruit. After a lye bath, what little flavor such fruit has, almost entirely disappears.

It is hoped that Congress will pass a law compelling canners who use the lye method to say so on their labels so that the people will have an opportunity of making intelligent choice of the canned fruit they and their families consume.

The result will probably be that every canner will abandon the lye-method, for while they want to save all the money they are able to, they will probably prefer to spend a little more on the peeling of peaches if they face less of business as a consequence of sticking to the cheaper method.

The Business Woman.

"Is it neat?" the business girl must specially ask herself if tempted by any specially alluring bit of sartorial prettiness. "Is it becoming?" should be a secondary consideration. Yet no woman in business or out of it will willingly make herself a sight in the interests of business—when her work is among men. Happily this is not necessary. There may be just as alluring an appeal about the severely simple raiment as in an elaborate costume, and some women have an innate instinct for economy in dress and can be irresistible in the most Quakerish garb.

The business woman's fur may be as handsome as she pleases—or her pocket-book will permit. A permissible fur is bad economy for the woman who must be out in all weathers and make frequent trips in crowded vehicles. Lysol, for instance, is soon ruined by this last treatment, which wears off all the long hairs and leaves the felt matted and cheap looking. White furs are not for the business woman—at least for every-day wear. If a white fur is worn occasionally when one expects to dine out later, the snowy headgear may be veiled by dark chiffon to subdue its gay and festive character during business hours.

Solon Putnam of Rumford, who spent several years in the Klondike gold fields, says that some of the weather he has experienced in Alaska for cold.

How Birds Fly.

Rapidity of Wing Movement—Putting on the Brakes.
Birds have different modes of flight, just as men have different gaits in walking or running. Rapid wing movement does not always imply speed in flight any more than rapid leg movement implies speed in walking or running. With us it is the length of the stride that tells ultimately. What, apart from wing movement, tells in the flight of the bird is not known.

Speaking broadly, long winged birds are strong and swift fliers; short winged birds are feeble in flight. When we consider that a cumbersome, slow moving bird like the heron moves its wings twice per second when in flight it is evident that many birds have a very rapid wing movement. Most small birds have this rapid wing movement with feeble powers of flight; the common wren and the dipper for instance, have a flight like that of a young bird.

Many of our smaller migrants seem but to flit from bush to bush or from tree to tree. Members of the thrush family are low fliers, the blackbird in particular, with its hasty, hurried flight often just avoiding fences and no more. Wagtails have a beautiful undulating flight with little apparent use of their wings. They look like greyhounds bounding through the air.

Nearly all birds sail or float occasionally without the slightest movement of their wings. Even a large bird like a phalarope will glide in this way for more than two hundred yards. Grouse have a rapid wing motion without any great speed, but when they prefer to do, they go very fast. Before alighting they flap their wings several times very rapidly, like the clapping of hands. Most birds after gliding do this. Does it correspond to putting on brakes or reversing the engine in the case of mechanical locomotion? With little apparent use of its wings the wood pigeon flies very strongly and rapidly. It never seems to "bring up" much before alighting, but crashes into a tree at full speed. When it rises its wings crack like pistol shots.

Ducks are strong on the wing and often fly in single file. Geese will fly in a considerable height. So do many gulls and other sea birds, in a stately, measured fashion, their calls occasionally sounding like, "Leif, right, left, right." Keets have a beautiful, clean cut, flapping motion of their wings and are like yachts sailing through the air, while their hovering in the air is one of the mysteries of bird life.

Peewees, which are so graceful in their motions on the ground, look like enormous bats when flying. Swallows, and in a marked degree swifts, have rapid wing movement with great speed and extraordinary power of flight.

Good Fellowship and Appetite.
Why do people have such good appetites at picnics, convention dinners, campaign barbecues, mission meetings and luncheons and other like gatherings? It is often asked by those who provide the fare. "There is no filling them up," cry the waiters who rush here and there with beans and cold meats and pitchers of coffee. Probably the reason is that the peepers on these public occasions have several causes. Some people slight their breakfasts on these gala days, out door air and pleasant companionship also add zest, but doubtless the novelty of it all acts as a temporary tonic.

"Mr. Smith simply won't look at beans at home, but now see him," says his wife, as some pretty waiter girl replenishes his plate. Perhaps he follows the example of Brown or Jones who eat heartily of this staple dish, perhaps he is so pleasantly occupied in talking across the table with old friends that he forgets that he is in the habit of refusing this particular sort of food.

The man or woman who lives alone, or in a family of two, is apt to find a wonderful increase of appetite when sitting at the table with a family of hungry children or of young people with good appetites. It is difficult for an individual living alone to keep an appetite or to satisfy it if necessary. The light housekeeper is generally admitted to taking some meals outside. It is true that some of Miss Wilkins' prim little old ladies set forth most satisfying meals on their small tables but in real life these same creatures would more likely settle down to an unwholesome diet of sweet and fat. No greater kindness can be done to the lone man or woman than to send them invitations to break bread with you. This is especially true at the holiday season when being alone is unusually hard to bear.

Michael Deegan.

Greenwood and vicinity was saddened Monday morning of last week to hear of the death of one of its most highly respected citizens, Michael Deegan, which occurred about 3:35 Monday morning, Jan. 10, 1910, at short illness. Mr. Deegan was taken sick of pneumonia about a week before his death.

He was born 57 years ago in King's County, Ireland. He came to this country when he was twenty years of age. He was foreman of the years of age. He was twenty eight years ago he came to Greenwood, where he has been occupied as a farmer.

The funeral was held at his late home Wednesday morning, attended by Rev. Father Hogan of Yarmouthville. Mass. and funeral services. Four of his sons were pall bearers.

To a Pretty Girl.

You are a pretty girl, my dear; we will admit that, an unusually pretty girl. You are young, you have an appearance and when you pass the men turn to look at you, and you have the front room lighted up four nights in the week. There is no doubt of your popularity—wonder at all, my dear; so you don't have to use the excuse for the way you are going. And you know how you are going—so do everyone else in town. And it's too bad! Your dress, your gait, your general air and attitude is that of a female rather than that of a person, and when a man is around, if you could see the way you act, you would blush, it isn't any one man in particular—just any one. Good Lord, girl, stop flirting and get some sense. Take off that dress that outlines your figure until you look unbecomingly, and put on clothes like other women. Don't say that those clothes make you look stylish; what they do is to make you look indecent.

Of course, we know you are smart, my dear; you take care of yourself. You are a business knowing, and that shows also. If you knew what is written on your face you would be ashamed to go outdoors; but it is all there; every one of those vain things that fill your silly head, and where your treasure is there your heart is. Then it is true, my dear, you are so plainly in evidence that it is pitiful how you advertise yourself.

Of course it is fun, you are having a good time, it's all innocent fun and you don't take care of yourself. They all do—those smart girls that the good times get closer and closer to the edge, but stolen waters are sweet and bread eaten in secret—but you don't care to have Scripture quoted to you. You are very proud, my dear, and your father doesn't see what the other men see; your mother may see and fear, and perhaps she is trying to make you see, too, but you think she is slow. You think she doesn't ever have a good thing. You think she is too strict.

But no girl who has ever cut up in a doctor's suit case or a trunk and tossed into the creek ever thought she would end that way. She always thought she knew so much more than her mother, and always thought her mother was too strict.

Of course it hasn't come to that yet, but it's along in that direction—just down at the turn of the road to the left.

It is not pleasant, still you are not present to look at, my dear, for all these things that you are wearing and you are a pretty girl, an exceptionally pretty girl, my dear; but only—

How I Made the Calf Grow.

No calf is so good that he cannot be made better by good care.

A few years ago I bought a thoroughbred Jersey calf of a man that lived not far from my home. The farmer was not a very good feeder. His cows showed that. His calves were not kept up in very good shape, either. I did not much blame him for that, for he had a big farm on his hands and help was scarce.

That calf was not very beautiful to look at. She was scrawny and puffed up like a balloon. My wife, who was with me, was ashamed to have the calf seen on the way home and begged me to throw a blanket over the little creature so that the neighbors might not see it and make fun of us.

But it seemed to me I saw the making of a good cow in that calf. She certainly was from good stock, being finely marked and of a delicate color that appealed to me. So we took her home and I must confess that it did seem a long way from calfhood to good cowhood with that poor little, stuffed animal. But I determined to make the most of her. It may be my pride was a bit touched by the comments which were made about the heifer by those who saw it after we reached home.

I began by giving the calf something to eat.

In a crate nearby I placed some bright hay every night, morning and it was not long before the calf was eating it freely. This kept her bowels in fine condition. I never worry about bowel trouble when a calf gets so it will eat plenty of hay. Instead of a damp, bad-smelling calf I had a good dry quarters; and that, in my opinion, is worth everything. No calf can do well, if kept in wet, filthy quarters. A bit of grain, such as buckwheat, shorts or bran, was also fed dry. That is the only right way to feed grain to any animal. Then it is well mixed with the saliva and is digested and goes to make bone and tissue.

To bring the story to an end, that calf made the best cow on the farm. We have her today, and if we were to let any of them go she would be the last, for milk is rich. She gives a good deal of it. She holds out splendidly in her milk. A year or two ago we did not get her dried off until it was almost time for her to come in again. She could be milked the year around. But every now and then I have a few weeks of rest before taking up the work of a new year. It was some trouble to dry her off last winter, but we did it and she is now leading the herd in quantity and quality.

The calf might have been spoiled by careless or wrong treatment. The thing that saved her was being used right. To often we let the calf just about shift for itself the first year, when if we only knew, right then when the cow is in the making. As we treat the calf, so the cow will be.

And no calf is so good that it may not be made better.

How to Freeze With Chemicals.

Ice cream can be frozen in five minutes and for an expenditure of 2 or 3 cents. If the preparation desired to be frozen is placed in a tin bucket or other receptacle it can readily be congealed by putting it in a pail containing a weak dilution of sulphuric acid and water. Into this throw a handful of common salt, and the resulting cold is so great that a bottle of wine immersed in the mixture will be frozen solid in a few minutes.

How to Get a Tight Ring Off.
When a ring has become too tight for the finger, as will often happen among growing children, instead of using the old method of filing, take a piece of common twine, insert one end under the ring toward the hand, the other end wind closely around the finger until over the joint, and proceed to wind with the end back of the ring, and if done correctly the tightest ring will come off easily.

How to Keep Food Hot.
Instead of placing food in the oven to keep warm, place the dish or pan containing it over a pan of water and put it on the stove. The water will keep hot, and the steam from it will keep the food as hot as if it had just been removed from the stove. This is better than putting it in the oven, for the food keeps moist and does not dry up as the heat of the oven does.

Mansur of Newport, Vt., died at that place at about 6 o'clock Monday morning, after a period of ill health extending over three years, but not until the last few days was her condition considered serious. Her entire family were present with her when she died.

Mrs. Mansur's maiden name was Ellen Louise Newhall and she was born in New Gloucester in 1848. In early childhood she moved with her parents to Norway, Sept. 5, 1867, and was united in marriage to Z. M. Mansur at South Paris, and since then has lived at Island Pond, Vt., with the exception of the last 13 years when they moved to Newport and soon found a warm welcome.

Mrs. Mansur would have been 64 years of age March 12th.

She leaves besides her husband a daughter, Mrs. Mabel S. Stearns, and a son, Arthur G. Mansur of Burlington, Vt., a brother, Albert S., and a sister, Sarah P. The interment was in the cemetery at that place.

Mrs. Mansur was a constant and effective worker in the Methodist church, of which denomination she was a member about thirty-eight years. She was also a member of the Woman's Relief Corps, took great interest in the work, and at one time held a State office in that body.

Mrs. Mansur went first to a cottage in a remote locality, but it was what the mained young soldier could provide, and all she required. There was sufficient for contentment, when her attributes as wife and mother made it home.

It was a life of toil to her for years, and it is she applied herself earnestly and cheerfully, keeping the confidence and sharing in the plans of her husband, and guiding with him their children into manhood and womanhood; and taking well her position as, one after another, the opportunities came for beyond her earlier expectation, till she reached the home of elegance and stood often in the receiving line of the first in state and nation. She met her responsibilities faithfully and recompense was a just return.

Beginning of Wood Industry

At Norway, Me.

In the death of Frederick Wuerzback at Interlaken, near Lee, Mass., this fall, the paper industry has lost one of the pioneers of the new era, which began when he started the first Voelter grinders at Curtisville, Mass., March 5, 1887. Since that date paper making has been largely a problem of the manipulation of wood. The passing away, therefore, of Mr. Wuerzback serves to recall the early days when the new way of making paper was being introduced.

The initial practical demonstration of the new process, as told by Albrecht Pagenstecher, took place in the mill of the Smith Paper Co., at Lee, Mass., March 8, 1887, the pulp made at Curtisville three days before having been carted to Lee for the trial. The trial proved satisfactory the Smith company contracted to use every pound of pulp made, and for more than a year that concern enjoyed a monopoly of using this new material, keeping, however, the knowledge of its usefulness entirely to itself. As stated by Mr. Pagenstecher, the honor of having first used wood pulp successfully in this country belongs to the Smith Paper Co. Mr. Wuerzback, who made the first pulp used at Lee, afterward became superintendent of the pulp mills of the Smith Paper Co., remaining in that capacity for 25 years.

Mr. Wuerzback was only the practical man of the new process, the real pioneers who introduced the wood process into this country were Albrecht Pagenstecher and his brother, Alberto. These men got their heads set on the idea of importing from Germany two Voelter machines. They did this through correspondence with a brother in Germany. They arrived in December, 1886, in charge of Wuerzback, who immediately went to work to set them up.

In common with all pioneers Mr. Pagenstecher and his associates had no end of trouble before the new process was firmly established. The first real difficulty was in the shape of a notice from Louis Prang of Boston, the American agent of Mr. Voelter, that the machines which they had imported from Germany were infringements on a patent taken out in this country by Mr. Voelter. As the only means of getting around the difficulty Mr. Pagenstecher, with the aid of his brother and cousin, Rudolph, bought the American patent on joint account. This was done, Mr. Pagenstecher states, in the autumn of 1889.

An interesting portion of the history of the early days is Mr. Pagenstecher's recital of his efforts to interest paper manufacturers in the new process. "I got no encouragement from them," he says. "One of the most prominent manufacturers of the time even told me that he would not take any interest in shoddy." Mr. Prang, it seems, had a similar experience in trying to interest paper makers, especially those operating news mills. He was told that the profits in making news were ample there was no need of introducing the then so called "inferior stock."

After a time a real beginning of the wood paper industry was made in this country at Norway, Me., at Lanesville, Conn., and at Luzerne, N. Y., where Mr. Pagenstecher and his friends started the first mill on their own account. From these small beginnings the great wood paper industry has grown to enormous proportions. To the younger ones in the trade it no doubt seems as if paper had always been made of wood, to find in the process, however, from March 7, 1887, the date upon which Mr. Wuerzback made the first pulp in this country at Curtisville, Mass., [Paper Trade Journal.

A Peep Behind The Curtain

Into the Past from the Advertiser, Jan. 9, 1887.

In several issues of the ADVERTISER there has been a collection of items which were published a few years ago and many of the readers have enjoyed looking over this collection; so this week we will take several of the surrounding towns and recall some of the incidents which happened twenty-five years ago, in the ADVERTISER which was published Jan. 9, 1885.

South Paris.

The singing conducted by Professor George is having good success.

A. F. Spaulding and G. B. Greenwood go to Red Wing, Minn., to work in the shoe factory there.

The South Paris Lodge of Good Templars is in a flourishing condition. It has a membership of 105 and is fast increasing.

John H. Jones is home from New York where he has been selling apple trees for C. K. Gerish. He called upon President-elect Cleveland at Albany on New Year's day. He said if it hadn't been on a holiday he would have been tempted to sell the Governor a bill of fruit trees. Joe has an eye to business.

C. F. Jackson, head of buying Andrews & Horne's great factory at Norway purposes to go to California for his health. He will go to Eureka in company with John Keough, who is shortly to return there from a visit to his parents in Paris.

George E. Wilson and family of Fairfield are the guests of James Curtis, Bethel.

A street lamp front of the Methodist church. Put up the bars for the cows have spoiled the corn.

We met Dr. E. T. True on the street this week. He was sitting in his sleigh, reading; was looking well in the face and said he could get about the house by taking hold of chairs, etc., and that if his lame leg did not improve it was no worse.

J. G. Rich goes to Boston, this week, for a month, to visit his friends and see about publishing his book.

Wheelock Davis has been home on a visit and has returned to Boston, where he has charge of a department in an institution of ancient languages.

We were kindly permitted to enter the sanctum sanctorum of the Bethel post office and view from behind the scenes the "modus operandi" of making up and distributing mails. It is a busy work and needs a level head as well as a good memory and piles of experience. A notable fact is the way some of our people have of putting off mailing their letters until the last moment. While we were there several came in, at the moment the mail bags were being loaded, and wanted postal orders, letters registered and some wrote cards and letters until the carrier came for the bag, and even then some came crushing in to mail letters and get stamps and rushed to the station to send them off to mail on the cars.

A feature of our office which all good citizens ought to turn down is the notes crowd of young people (I fear Academy scholars) that go every night before mail time and crowd the outer office full and keep up such a noise by their feet and other noises that it almost crazes the ones inside, confuses the distributing business and is a nuisance, to say the least, that ought to be abolished. We should think that parents would rather their daughters would be at home than crowding in such an element of slang and nuisance. These young folks monopolize the room so that adult people have to go outside and stand waiting in the cold.

West Paris.

Our blacksmith, H. Curtis, is doing a large business at his shop. He has shed 30 yoke of cattle this fall; would not dare to say how many horses he has shed. He has ironed four sets of trawlers besides and thirty patent yokes, besides doing a large amount of job work. This work has been done by himself and Wesley Newell in the last two months.

E. B. Judkins informs us that he will open his carriage shop this spring and will manufacture new carriages and sleighs as well as do all kinds of job work.

Mrs. Eliza Emery died, Christmas, of consumption.

The ladies of the Universalist Circle gave a box supper New Year's evening. Each lady brought a box containing supper for two and her name. These were purchased by the gentleman, who thus secured a good supper and a partner for the evening at the same time. After the supper there was a social dance, music being furnished by John Crawford and wife.

The house of Nelson Stevens at Trap Corner came near being destroyed by fire the first of last week. The fire originated from a defect in a burning chimney. Luckily the school was in session close by and the scholars came rushing to the rescue, as did the neighbors, and after a sharp struggle the flames were extinguished.

Locke's Mills.

There was a Christmas ball at the Mt. Abram House, December 24th, under the auspices of the G. A. R. Post of Bryant's Pond. There were thirty-four couples present and a general good time enjoyed by all. Fine music was rendered by Herriek, Whitney, Sheeran and Andrews, with W. E. Bowker as prompter. A supper of baked beans, brown bread and other good things too numerous to mention was served.

Ray. B. Hannaford was the recipient of a nice scarf and a sum of money at the Christmas tree at Currier's hall, Dec. 26th.

Mrs. Rufus Young, the dressmaker, who moved from West Paris last spring, has been rushed with work ever since she came. She is a first class workman and will fit you every time.

F. D. Sweetser of Ottawa, Ill., who is boarding with Mrs. Dudley, has been catching some big fish out of North pond lately.

Jesse F. Libby goes to Mechanic Falls to teach school. He is a graduate of Bowdoin college and is a worthy young man.

School commenced in our village last Monday under the instruction of Mrs. Mason Kimball. She has taught here before and is a nice teacher.

The meeting house is about finished. The pews are all in and they are splendid looking ones. I understand meeting will be held in the house next Sunday.

Paris Hill.

I write to make record of a fact which surprised me, and which I think will be a surprise to many others. On Saturday morning, Dec. 27, in the early morning the thermometer here stood at one and two degrees below zero, at 9 a. m. at zero, and at noon 16 degrees above.

There was no wind and it was altogether a very enjoyable, very comfortable winter's day. What was my surprise to hear at noon that the thermometer at

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Regulator she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irassburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed a great change."—Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irassburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

The Open Fireplace.

Through all the stages of progress of society in house heating, from the Frank-oven and the open hearth, to the modern hot air or electric furnace, and then up the line through the steam-heating and hot-water heating stages to that of natural gas or electricity, there runs the tradition of the original home heater—the open fire place.

It is not so pathetic to note the lingering sentiment of comfort-loving humanity for the generous flare of a fireplace, the firelight redolent with memories of cheer and warmth of a kind that cannot be duplicated. A modern house is hardly complete without a fireplace, a gaping chasm in the life of civilized folk, that was never intended to hold a fire.

These ornamental non-practical things are a far-off-sight of the one-time better days. Those who find their way in mid-winter to an old farmhouse—not one of the fancy things built upon cottages from the olden times—will find a cheerful open fire, with its back log and andirons, and stretches himself before it to watch the changing fancy forms, the flames, may account himself fortunate. Those who can hike away from civilization in mid-winter and find the mountain retreats, with only the path to the spring to remind them of the impertinent summer intruders, and there establish themselves in a cabin with an open fireplace, are as near perfect bliss as a mortal commonly gets. It would be a great world if only the open fireplace could maintain its ancient glow without this adjunct to primitive comfort what do modern conveniences amount to?

Word comes from Sumner that "Slocum" has observed the 50th anniversary of his marriage, and that he, with his good wife, still enjoy every day of the year. His nickname was derived from a character he depicted in a comedy sketch, way back in 1853.

The senior class at the academy has in preparation a drama to be given in a few weeks.

Mrs. Susie Nelson was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Eastman, during her stay in Fryeburg.

Mrs. James Eastman spent the week end in Portland. Master Harold Eastman, who has been with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sawtelle, in Bath, the past two months, returned home with his mother.

The drama, "Down by the Sea," given at the Congregational chapel, was a success in every way. The parts were well taken, the audience large and appreciative, and consequently the receipts were satisfactory. The Fryeburg orchestra played very acceptably between the scenes.

James H. Sutcliffe died, Sunday night, Jan. 9th. The funeral service was held at his late home on Tuesday p. m., attended by Mr. Stone. Mr. Sutcliffe was a most loyal member of the Grand Army and will be greatly missed by his comrades of Grover Post, in which organization he had for years held the office and performed the duties of Officer of the Day. He leaves a wife who is almost helpless, and a sister, Mrs. Susie Nelson of Methuen.

Two Hundred per cent Loss.

He was no college bred business man. He was just the other kind. In the course of his commercial ventures he was induced by an acquaintance to become a partner in the grain and feed line. After about a year of it the firm went to pieces, leaving him with the bag to hold. A college friend met him shortly after the collapse and was asking about it.

"What per cent of the loss fell upon you?" inquired the friend who didn't know the particulars.

"Two hundred," he responded promptly.

"Two hundred?" exclaimed the friend. "Why, man, there can't be more than a hundred per cent loss."

"Come off," he countered. "There was two of us. He lost a hundred and I lost a hundred. Don't that make $200?"

"Course not. Your loss is only 100 per cent."

"Yes, but say," he explained, "I had to settle for it all."

"Oh," said the friend.

DENMARK.

Some Smart Men.
Denmark can certainly boast of some smart old men.
Uncle Chadbourne Rand celebrated his 90th birthday on Wednesday, the 12th, by walking to the village both forenoon and afternoon, and it would take a smart young man to beat Uncle Chad at walking any day. It was he who received the gold headed cane from The Boston Post the past season, for being the oldest man in town.
William Gilman also celebrated his 80th birthday on Thursday, the 13th, and is also very smart for his years. He has already cut 20 cords of wood and will probably make from 50 to 400 thousand birch hoops this winter.
Uncle Steve Jewett is also very smart, although he must not call him old, only 83, and is seen daily making his trips in company with Uncle Chad.
Quite a large amount of ice has been harvested the past week from Moose pond.
Hotel Bartlett is closed and the proprietor is spending the winter in Portland.
I. H. Berry's condition is slightly improved the past week. He is attended by two physicians.
Augustine Ingalls is at the post-office again, after being confined to the house for several days by sickness.
The Macabees commenced a series of dances at their hall on Friday, the 7th. Music is furnished by the Higgins orchestra.
Mrs. Lydia McIntire is gaining slowly. Her sister, Mrs. Vancouver of Newport, Vt., is spending the winter with her and attending to the household duties.

Howard Lane and wife have returned to Norway.
Mrs. D. A. Barker has been ill with ulcerated teeth.

Grand Trunk Pacific Steamers.

News of the ceremony of launching the first ocean steamer of the Grand Trunk Pacific fleet, and description of that splendid ship "Prince Rupert," has just reached Canada.

According to British publications:

"The naming ceremony was performed by Mrs. Richard L. Newman, of Victoria, B. C. Many distinguished persons were present including Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, G. C. M. G., C. B., the Lord Mayor of Newcastle and his lady, the Sheriff of Newcastle, also the Mayors of Wallsend and Jarrow."

The published account says: "The steamship 'Prince Rupert' has been most carefully designed by Messrs. Swan, Hunter and Wiggin, Richardson, Ltd. The steamer will have a smart appearance with its straight stem and cruiser stern. There will be two pole masts and three funnels, the centre funnel bearing the flag device of the company. The round cruiser stern has been adopted in order to obtain the best lines to give a high speed. The ship is being built to the highest class under the British Corporation survey and will also comply with the Board of Trade regulations for passenger steamers."

"The 'Prince Rupert' is 320 feet long, 42 feet, 2 inches wide, with a depth of 18 feet to the main deck. The gross tonnage of the vessel is 2,850 tons. The engines and boilers with Howden's forced draught are being constructed by the Wallsend Slipway and Engineering Co. Ltd. There are two sets of triple expansion engines balanced on the Yarrow, Solihull and Tweedy system. This system is used not only in modern passenger ships but also in vessels of all classes as it ensures smooth and steady running with vibration reduced to a negligible quantity."

"On the shelter and shade decks of the 'Prince Rupert' there will be accommodation in state rooms of two berths each for 250 first class passengers. There will also be a few sets of staterooms en suite placed on the shelter deck amidships. There is provision on the main deck ward for second class passengers. When ocean cruises, 1,500 excursionists can be taken on board."

"Alderman Hunter of Newcastle in proposing the health of the lady who christened the 'Prince Rupert' and the success of the ship said: 'The steamer they had seen launched was one of great interest and one which they were very proud to have been commissioned to build. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway was of historic importance. It was a great undertaking and when it was finally completed it would open up a new and very rich part of the Dominion and would have very easy gradients. The railway would open up a very vast area rich in all kinds of timber, in hematite, iron, coal, copper and mica, and before many years were over, through the means of the railway, the immense territory would begin to be thickly populated and the city of Prince Rupert would become a splendid town.'"

"Mr. R. L. Newman, following, Alderman Hunter said: 'The name 'Prince Rupert' was taken from the City of Prince Rupert, the Western gateway of the British Empire through which would ultimately flow the manufactured and agricultural products of that great section of the Empire, also the manufactured products of the New England States, and last but not least, let them hope that it would be the means of drawing closer to that tight little island of which they were all so proud, the markets of the Orient. He wished that he had the tongue of a Burke that he might tell them of the beauties and possibilities of that vast possibilities; its great mineral wealth, its enormous wealth in timber, and also of its fisheries.'"

Englishmen did not appreciate the possibilities of their birthright, but their neighbors, the citizens of the United States, were rapidly awakening to the great opportunities of Canada. In the great Northwest thousands of American farmers were crossing the borders, and there raising stock and immense crops of wheat. Why were our young English farmers not embracing more of these opportunities? He had heard of excess in population in this country, why was it then that Canada was seeking elsewhere for settlers?"

"The chairman gave the toast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company and said when the railway was completed it would be possible to go around the world in 23 1/2 days. Mr. Louis Leopold replied and greeted the presence of Mr. Charles M. Hays, President of the Company, and of Mr. F. C. Salter, European traffic manager. He pointed out the possibilities of the new railway and said that it would open up on the Pacific coast a most important port in commercial and strategical history."

Wheat Cleaned Six Times

"The equipment for wheat cleaning is as extensive and expensive as that for grinding purposes. The freedom of flour from dirt and bacteria shows in its appearance."

Prop. Wm. Jaso.
In National Association Review.
Wheat specially selected for William Tell Flour is stored in hermetically sealed tanks, at Ansted & Burck's big mills.
It is cleaned six times before grinding. Everything about the sewing of the bags is done by clean, bright machinery. Note how much pure William Tell is than other flours. This means wheat cleaning by the most complete equipment known to modern milling science. William Tell flour has the brilliant bloom such as only Ohio wheat can make. ALBANY.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Wheeler of Shelburne, N. H., visited at A. G. Bean's on Monday, the 17th, and called on other relatives in this vicinity.

The neighbors were startled Friday morning, when the news was flashed over the wires that E. S. Hutchinson, formerly known as "Uncle Sumner," had passed to the great beyond. He had lived to a good old age, being 87, the oldest man in town. He was born on the farm where he died. Being the youngest of a large family he took care of his father and mother in their last days, and now he had the loving care of a daughter and her husband, W. E. Herrick, since he was unable to manage the farm himself. His wife and companion in life passed on to the higher life Nov. 17, 1908. They had reared a family of three daughters and one son, three of whom are left to mourn the loss of their loved ones. Uncle Sumner was a man very firm and staunch in his religious and temperance belief. He united with the Methodist church when a young man and was always loyal to his church. He leaves many friends to pay tribute to his memory.

Enjoy Fine Public Installation.

On Saturday evening Jan. 15 occurred the public installation of the officers of the G. M. Knight Corps, No. 95. A bountiful supper was served. This part of the program is always enjoyed by all.

The installing officer was Mrs. Blanche Merrill, I. and J. of Hebron and her work impressed all with the fact that she was eminently fitted for the position which she held. The officers installed by her were as follows:

Pres.—Grace Elliott.
Sec. Y.—Fanny Brown.
Dr. V.—Honor Barlett.
Chap.—Louise Knight.
Treas.—Myra Farnick.
Sec.—Mary Dresser.

Following the installation, the president, Mrs. Grace Elliott in behalf of the members of the Corps, presented the Past President, Mrs. Fred Black, a silver berry spoon, to show that they were aware of, and also appreciated the vast amount of labor that Mrs. Black had done for the order while she occupied the president's chair. This came as a great surprise to Mrs. Black who responded in a pleasing manner.

Remarks were made by Rev. W. B. Hagne, one of our honored pastors, by Stephen McAllister, commander of Leppien Post, Stoneham, and others. The spirit of patriotism was much in evidence in the remarks offered by Mrs. Charles P. Saunders. I wish there might be many inspired by the same feelings. In closing all joined in singing America.

The following officers were installed Friday night in Waterford grange 4790 by the G. M. of South Paris:

Petition Signed by Men and Women.

A mild session has prevailed for a couple of weeks, quite worthy of note. It is a petition to Congress for an amendment to the federal constitution permitting the American woman to become a voter in all political affairs. Granville Fernald is circulating the petition and it is being signed by men and women, almost without exception, especially by members of the Grange.

Anti-suffragists in this community are what the southern-darlings call "no count." The amendment asked for has to be submitted to the States for ratification by the male voters at a state election.

In every state and territory the campaign is being vigorously pushed and in a few weeks the petition will be presented to Congress for action. It is expected to contain at least a million signatures.

A number of cases of la grippe are reported to be recovering.

Charles Chaplin is delivering a big lot of handsome cord-wood to the Grange store.

Josephine Gerry is on the sick list for two weeks past and is under the care of a trained nurse.

Notable recent accessions to the church choir at Bethel Bell, soprano and Hattie Smith, organist.

W. K. Hamlin is having a large supply of gray birch-wood hauled to the creamery from his old farm in the hill country.

Carroll Sanborn, who has been a number of years employed as janitor at the Grange hall, has resigned that position and is succeeded by C. P. Riggs.

The attendance at Saturday last of Mrs. Justin McIntire on the installation and other services of her grange, after many months' detention at home by illness, was a most sincere pleasure to her brother and sister patrons.

Bear Mountain grange had an all-day meeting on Saturday, Jan. 15, for installation of officers for the present year. About 125 patrons were present, 60 of whom were invited guests from Norway grange. The installation service was performed by Brother John A. R. of Norway grange, in which he was ably assisted by Sister Robert.

The grange choir were on duty and rendered several appropriate selections. The noon recess witnessed an overflow attendance upon the dinner service in the banquet rooms of the Grange. The afternoon program consisted of the following:

Worthy Lecturer L. E. McIntire, was exceptionally good, consisting of readings by Sisters Hall, McIntire and Sias and a fine rendition by Brother G. W. Sias of an original piece in the form of an imaginary scene or scenes depicting the career of Napoleon the Great.

Little Amy Sias recited a childish experience that caused the audience to tumble. A question was proposed for discussion as follows: Resolved that cooperative buying of grain by farmers is worthy of consideration by them. Brothers Roberts, Towse and Buck of Norway and W. K. Hamlin, C. S. Hamlin and L. E. McIntire of Waterford participated in the debate. The consensus of opinion was in favor of the affirmative. Voted that the next meeting be on Jan. 20, and thereafter every alternate week during the winter until further notice. The Packard family orchestra played several fine selections.

Mrs. Charles Farrington is helping Sue Wilson this week.

V. G.—Dana E. McAllister.
Fin. Sec.—Lizzie McAllister.

R. S. N. G.—John Q. Mason.

HEBRON.

New Dormitory for Boys.

The new dormitory for boys at Hebron Academy is completed. The building is of brick and is 80 feet long and 40 feet wide, two stories in height and contains 32 rooms for the students, a suite of rooms and bath for the master, in charge, and has two large reception rooms on the first floor. In the living rooms are two large fire places and in the basement are shower baths and all modern toilet arrangements.

Brick and iron are used in the construction of the building and in the finish much southern pine was used. The building and the grading of the grounds cost $30,000. The most of the money was raised by friends of the school throughout New England, much of it being given in small sums.

Made Fine Appearance.

The T. A. Roberts Post G. A. R. and the Ladies' Relief Corps held a joint installation of officers at Post Hall, Saturday, January 15th. The hall was filled to overflowing with interested spectators, when A. J. Holden called the meeting to order and announced the business of the ladies.

Comrade C. T. Wardwell, Junior Vice Commander of the Department of Maine, acted as installing officer, and in a business like manner proceeded to install the officers elected. George Knight of Otisfield, was officer of the day and performed his duties with precision and despatch.

At the close of G. A. R. work the members of the Ladies' Relief Corps prepared for their installation. The ladies of the Corps executed a very interesting drill in seating their officers, and marched through the movements with a quiet dignity and precision that brought them frequent applause. It always seemed to the writer that the ladies made a better general appearance upon the floor than the men. Especially in the movements of a drill. They usually are more interested, more dignified, attend strictly to business and are more particular about details, especially about dress, so they always make a neat and tidy appearance.

At close of the drill, Hattie Andrews, installing officer, and Mrs. Mattie Holden, conductor, installed the corps officers. The ritualistic services is somewhat long and exacting, but Miss Andrews performed her part in a most commendable manner, and is deserving both credit and praise for her efficient work.

The president of the corps, Abbie Hanson, in taking charge of the meeting, called upon the retiring president, Hattie Andrews, for some remarks, and she responded with a well timed speech which showed her enthusiasm and interest in the corps. Cyrus Chaplin thanked the members of the post and the people generally for their uniform courtesy and kindness extended him during the year. A. J. Holden read a poem and Mrs. Augusta Jones and John L. Dyer were among the other speakers.

The joint installation was a success in more ways than one and was perhaps the most pleasant and beneficial of any held by the two orders. It certainly demonstrated to the public the strong hold of sympathy existing between the Corps and the G. A. R. And there is nothing that will touch a tender chord in the breast of the old veteran quicker than the notice and courtesy extended to him by the ladies and the school children.

Young men are prone to forget the services performed by the soldiers in blue, but the ladies and children, never. All honor to old veterans and may their names be forever kept green by a grateful and benevolent nation.

Col. A. J. Hilborn.

Colonel Alpheus J. Hilborn of Boston, a native of the town of Oxford, died recently in Palatka, Florida, at the age of eighty years. He was born on a farm in the Pigeon Hill neighborhood of Oxford in 1829 and lived there until, when a young man, he went to Boston and engaged in mercantile pursuits. In these he was successful, working his way up until at length he became the head of a firm under the style of A. J. Hilborn & Co., for many years in the wholesale hats, caps and fur business.

About seven years ago he retired from active business, although retaining an interest to the time of his death. He served in the militia as a captain of a company in one of the Massachusetts regiments. He had been for a long time a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston. He was a 32d degree Mason, belonging to Palestine Commandery of Chelsea.

Since retiring from business Colonel Hilborn has lived in Florida a large part of the time, coming North summers, staying at his home in Melrose or making excursions to Nova Scotia and the wild regions of other parts of Canada and this country. Only a few months ago he made a trip to Oxford county, revisiting his old home and adjoining towns.

His wife died many years ago. He is survived by three children, a son, Herbert, now in the West, and two daughters, Mrs. Myra Fitz of Dorchester, Mass., and Mrs. J. C. F. Strout of Portland. His death was quite sudden and unexpected. The body was brought home to Boston for burial.

Little Miss Marjorie Lebrock is confined to the house with a wild attack of whooping cough.

The Pythian Sisters are at work upon a legitimate drama, which they intend to give during the first of February.

John B. Robinson, Edwin Thayer, George Jones and A. S. Fuller, attended the horse racing at Lewiston, on Friday last.

The revival services at the Advent church are well attended and several persons have publicly expressed a desire for further instructions.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heshop have moved from the Goodyear rent on Pleasant street, to the upstairs rent in Frank Kane's house on King street.

Heleak Akers of Andover is teaching the intermediate department of the village schools. Miss Akers is a teacher of experience, is well known and is proving her worth in the school room.

The selectmen are in almost daily session, picking up the loose ends, preparing to wind up the year's business. They are also notifying all property holders, of the law in regard to the Gipsey moth.

Freeman B. Andrews has so far recovered from his recent severe illness, as to be out of doors again. Mr. Andrews attended the joint installation on Saturday last, and his comrades and all extended to him the glad hand of welcome.

The Pythian Sisters held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, and installed the officers for the new year. The installing officer was Mrs. Sadie Bowser, who did her work quietly and without a hitch. Eliza Bowie was her assistant. The retiring M. E. Chief, Mrs. Lillian Scribner, made a neat little speech, thanking the members for their interest and support during the last year and wishing them a continuation of prosperity.

On Saturday, January 22nd, occurs the installation of the officers of Oxford Grange No. 40. The work of installing the officers will be done in the forenoon by J. H. Blanchard, in Robinson hall. Dinner will be served in the hall above. A speaker from the University of Maine has been engaged. The afternoon will be given up to social enjoyment and talk from the different speakers. The Grangers from West Milport, Otisfield and Otisfield Gore, have been invited and the attendance promises to be large.

Let every member of Oxford Grange No. 40 be on hand if possible. The secretary will be on duty at 9:30 a. m.

The objects of the league are to improve the condition of the school, provide a school library, pictures and necessary equipment; also to unite the pupils, teachers and citizens and make the school a point of interest for the entire community. The league had an able president and a bustling executive committee and there is no doubt of its success.
